What is critical illness cover?

Whether you need critical illness protection depends on your situation as well as any existing policies you might already have in place.

Critical illness insurance pays out a one-off, lump sum if you're diagnosed with a condition or disability that is covered by your policy. It can be offered when someone applies for life insurance – as extra coverage.

In a similar way to some life insurance plans, critical illness covers a set number of years. You can specify whether you want the payout to rise over the course of the term (so it keeps up with inflation) or the opposite – decreasing because your aim is to cover something specific like your mortgage.

If you're thinking about critical illness cover, it's important to speak to your financial adviser who can help you decide how much cover you'll need and how long the term should last.

What does critical illness cover?

Products vary depending on the provider. Certain illnesses are covered as standard by most insurers, including, cancer, heart attack, stroke, organ failure, multiple sclerosis, loss of arms or legs and Alzheimer's and Parkinson's disease.

Some providers may allow you to add additional illnesses to your policy, which you'll pay more for. Your children could also be covered as part of your policy so it's worth asking your adviser about these options if it's something you're keen to have in place.

What does critical illness not cover?

Although a diagnosis of a critical illness can mark the start of a claim in some policies, others may only begin to offer protection once your illness hits a certain level of severity. For example, if you are diagnosed with cancer, payments may only begin when permanent symptoms have been officially diagnosed. Additionally, not all types of cancer are necessarily covered by critical illness protection.

It's important to work with your financial adviser when reviewing a policy and all the small print before you commit to make sure you are sufficiently covered – and aware of areas not included.

Pre-existing conditions

Just like the life insurance application process, critical illness protection requires you to disclose any pre-existing conditions. If you don't then your policy could be invalid.

Your adviser can search the market for a suitable plan, but you'll probably have to pay more in premiums and there will likely be some extra exclusions. The price you pay will vary, based on things like age, occupation, state of health, lifestyle and how much coverage you need and for how long.

Do you need critical illness cover?

There are things to consider if you're worried about being diagnosed with a critical illness and the impact on your income and ability to keep up with bills (which would not be covered by state benefits when you're unable to work).

Your adviser will help you look at the following areas:

- Your employer's coverage – is there any paid leave for illness or disability and for how long?
- Do you have an existing life insurance policy and if so, does it have any illness coverage included?
- Could you consider income protection insurance as an alternative to critical illness?
- Do you have sufficient savings and investments you could use in place of critical illness cover?

If you want to proceed, it's important to work with your adviser to see how much protection you'll need. This means looking at your monthly outgoings and how much you and your family require to live comfortably. You might want to add in any potential costs from medical treatment you may need.

During these important decisions it's easy to lose track of the small details, which is why your adviser can help make the process easier for you and your family and give you some peace of mind.

We can examine your needs and existing policies and then find you the right cover that protects your finances – and your family – should anything happen.

Investment strategies as you approach retirement

It's usually a good idea to start reducing the risk of your pension fund as you approach retirement. But it's important to strike the right balance so you can continue to power the growth of your portfolio for many years to come as well as draw an income.

As we move through the different stages of life it's important that our investment strategies adapt. Typically, your financial goals change when you retire. You may want a regular reliable income, which usually means you have to take less risk when it comes to investing. People nearing retirement traditionally switch savings out of risky investments and into safer assets to protect their portfolios from market downturns.

Reduce risk in your portfolio as you near retirement

Managing your portfolio's risk level (the possibility of losing the money you invest) as you get older is important to ensure you meet your financial goals. Younger investors with longer timelines to retirement (typically 30 to 40 years) are generally encouraged to take more risk in their portfolios as if there are any market falls, they have longer to recover.

As you get older and approach retirement the more important it is to preserve the wealth you have accumulated. This is because as the timeline to retiring gets shorter, your portfolio has less time to recover in the event of a market decline.

So, it's a good idea to lower the level of risk to reduce the possibility of your investments falling in value. In most cases, this means reducing exposure to equities and increasing exposure to lower-risk investments that produce an income such as bonds to shield your investments from the ups and downs of the market.

Why it's important to diversify

Portfolio diversification is a way of reducing potential risks by spreading your investments across different assets, rather than having it concentrated in one place. By investing across different asset classes, companies, countries, and sectors, you can help reduce the impact of any major market swings on your portfolio.

While you can't eliminate all investment risk, diversification can help smooth out any fluctuations that happen over time. For instance, stocks can earn more money than other asset classes, but they tend to be more volatile. Therefore, most financial professionals agree that as you approach retirement it is best to reduce the allocation to equities in your portfolio.

Government bonds are less likely to lose money than stocks and are seen as a better bet for retirement thanks to their predictability and income-generating potential. Bond prices are also not affected by the same market conditions that move stock prices. By shifting their investments out of stocks and into bonds, people nearing retirement can lower their risk and enjoy greater financial stability.

Finding the right balance

It's always important to review your investments before any big life changes, which is particularly true if you are approaching retirement. With any decision about your investments, there are trade-offs. The greater the risk you are prepared to tolerate, the more potential there is for your investments to grow.

While reducing risk with bonds can help shield you from any downturns in the market, your returns could be lower. As you approach retirement, it's important to strike the right balance between assets reducing risk in your portfolio so you can continue to power its growth for many years to come as well as draw an income.

A financial adviser can help you build a well-diversified portfolio appropriate for your risk tolerance and investment goals and adapt it, so the strategy always reflects your age and circumstances.

The value of investments and any income from them can fall as well as rise and you may not get back the original amount invested.

Self-employed - tips before applying for a mortgage

Self-employed workers have always faced additional challenges when trying to get on the property ladder. But stringent affordability tests mean it's becoming even more difficult to secure a mortgage.

Government statistics show in May to July 2023 there were 4.24 million people were self-employed. So, the barriers for self-employed workers are something thousands of aspiring homeowners need to overcome every year.

According to the Telegraph, it's "never been harder" to get a mortgage if you're self-employed.

If you don't have a predictable income, lenders are likely to ask you more questions. However, lenders are reportedly asking self-employed workers questions that weren't common in the past, such as which energy supplier they are with or if they can supply a reference from their accountant about the strength of their business.

As lenders are being more cautious, it's estimated they rated only 65% of self-employed mortgage applications as "affordable" at the end of 2022.

So, if you're self-employed and seeking a mortgage, what can you do?

1. Check your credit report

Anyone seeking a mortgage should check their credit report. It's one of the tools lenders will use to assess how much of a risk you pose. Going through your report before you apply gives you a chance to uncover potential red flags first.

Things like payday loans or large credit card debt could lead to your application being rejected, even if you're confident you could meet the repayments.

There may be things you can do to improve your credit report, such as registering on the electoral roll or paying off an overdraft.

2. Prepare evidence of your income

You will need to prove your income when applying for a mortgage. This is usually done by providing your self-assessment tax returns.

You will typically need a minimum of 12 months of accounts to be eligible for a mortgage. However, some lenders may require evidence of your income for two years or more.

Getting your paperwork in order before you apply for a mortgage could help you identify potential gaps and ensure you have everything to hand.

3. Be mindful of how steps to reduce tax liability could affect your mortgage application

When taking an income from your work, you may take steps to minimise your tax liability. While this can help your money to go further, you should be mindful that it could affect your mortgage application.

For example, not every lender will consider "retained profits" as part of your income as a self-employed borrower.

Your income is used to calculate how much you can borrow – a typical amount is 4.5 times your annual income – but this varies between lenders and will depend on your circumstances. So, managing your tax bill could have a knock-on effect on the amount you could borrow or even mean a lender rejects your application.

4. Keep track of your contracts

If you have a pipeline of work or long-term projects, having your contracts to show lenders could be useful. It can demonstrate that you'll have an income in the future and boost their confidence that you'll meet repayments.

Borrowers that pose a lower risk could benefit from a more competitive interest rate and lower repayments as a result.

YOUR HOME MAY BE REPOSSESSED IF YOU DO NOT KEEP UP REPAYMENTS ON A MORTGAGE OR OTHER LOANS SECURED ON IT.

5. Save a larger deposit

You could access a mortgage with a 5% deposit. However, if you want to improve your chances of success, a larger deposit could tip the scales in your favour – the larger the deposit, the less risk you pose to a lender.

Taking some time to save more for your deposit might be frustrating, but it could make all the difference.

6. Look beyond high street banks

There are lots of mortgage lenders to choose from. While your first thought may be to approach a familiar high street bank, alternatives may be more likely to approve your application, allow you to borrow more, or offer a lower interest rate. So, searching the market could help you reach your home ownership goals.

Searching the market and understanding which lenders could be right for you can be difficult. Working with a mortgage broker could be valuable here and improve your chances of success.

The benefits of starting a pension early

It's never too early to start saving for retirement. In fact, the sooner you start saving, the more time for your money to grow.

Starting a pension early is one of the best things you can do for your financial future. By taking advantage of the benefits of early retirement savings, you can ensure that you have a secure financial future and enjoy your retirement years to the fullest.

More time to save

One of the most significant benefits of starting a pension early is the additional time you have to save money. The longer your money is invested, the more time for it to grow, which can help you accumulate a larger retirement fund. Starting early also means that you can take advantage of compound interest, which is interest earned on both the principal and the accumulated interest. Over time, compound interest can significantly increase the value of your pension fund.

Lower monthly contributions

Starting a pension early can also help you keep your monthly contributions lower. Because you have more time to save, you can spread your contributions over a longer period. This can make it easier to budget for your retirement savings and ensure that you are putting away enough money to reach your retirement goals.

Employer contributions

If you are enrolled in a workplace pension scheme many employers offer to match employee pension contributions, (up to a certain percentage). This 'free money' can help you save even more for retirement.

Tax benefits

The government offers tax relief on pension contributions, which means you can put more money into your pension each month. For example, if you're a taxpayer, you can get up to 60% tax relief on your contributions.

Financial security

Starting a pension early can help provide financial security in retirement. By starting to save early, you can build a solid foundation for your retirement years and ensure that you have enough money to cover your expenses. This can help alleviate financial stress and allow you to enjoy your retirement years without worrying about running out of money. Knowing that you have a secure financial future can give you peace of mind and allow you to enjoy your retirement more.

Tips for starting a pension early:

- Set up a regular contribution
  The best way to make sure you're saving for retirement is to set up a regular contribution. This could be a fixed amount each month or a percentage of your salary.
- Increase your contributions as you earn more
  As your income increases, you can increase your pension contributions to make sure you're on track for a comfortable retirement.
- Take advantage of tax relief
  The government offers tax relief on pension contributions, which means you can put more money into your pension each month.
- Consider employer contributions
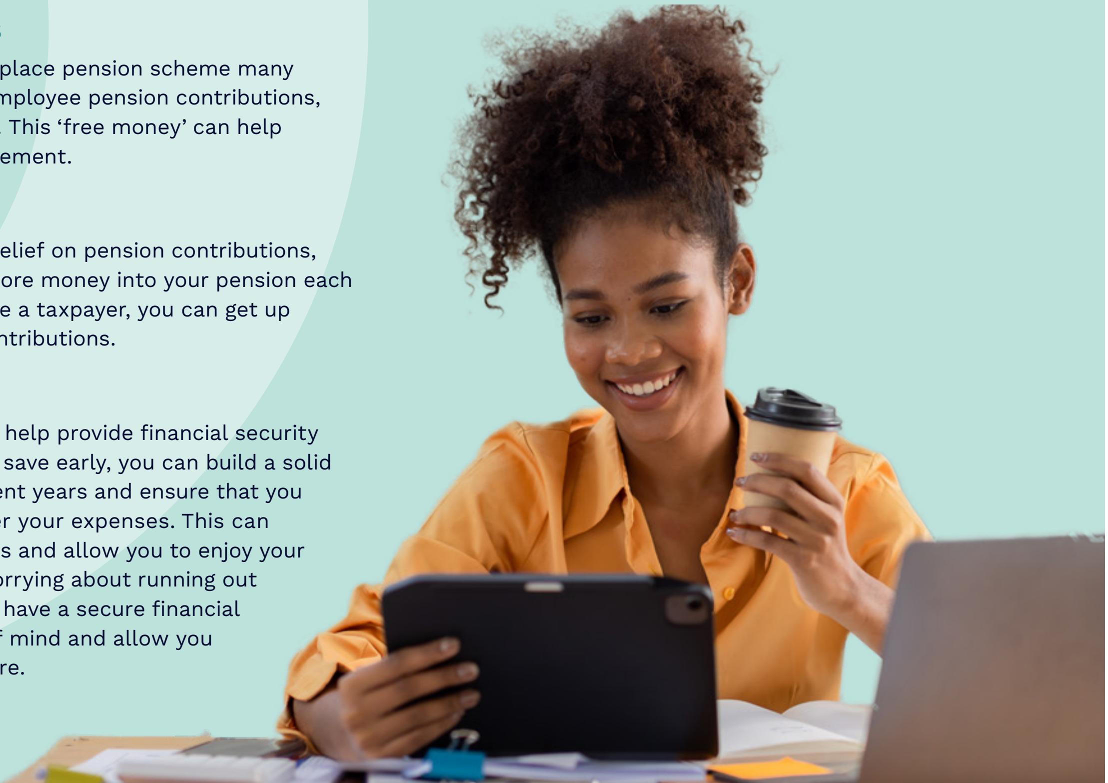
  Many employers offer to match employee pension contributions, which is free money that can help you save even more for retirement.

By giving yourself more time to save, keeping your contributions manageable, taking advantage of tax benefits, and providing financial security in retirement, you can set yourself up for a comfortable and fulfilling retirement. So, if you haven't started saving for retirement yet, now is the time to start!



The value of investments and any income from them can fall as well as rise and you may not get back the original amount invested.

HM Revenue and Customs practice and the law relating to taxation are complex and subject to individual circumstances and changes which cannot be foreseen.

Home insurance explained

This year sees new rules from insurers that could bring you savings on your home insurance renewal.

The Financial Conduct Authority (FCA) has announced that insurers will have to offer the same deals to new customers and renewing customers for their home insurance.

Home insurance customers are particularly affected by hikes in renewals, so this is a good time to review your policy with your financial adviser.

What is buildings insurance?

Buildings insurance covers the building itself and its structure – like the roof, floors, windows and in some cases external walls and garages. It will also cover permanent fittings in your kitchen and bathroom (but not your boiler – you'll need specific boiler protection for that).

Mortgage lenders require homeowners to have buildings insurance in place. It's there to protect your property's structure from damaging events like fires, storms, earthquakes, flooding and natural disasters, as well as things like subsidence and even malicious damage or vandalism.

What does buildings insurance not cover?

Buildings insurance won't cover:

- Accidents or normal wear and tear in the home
- Issues arising from neglect of the property
- Damage to gates, fencing or plants
- Effects of frost to external pipes and brickwork
- Damage from pests, insects or birds

To cover some of these issues, your insurance provider may offer accidental coverage as an extra to your policy – but you'll pay more for it. Your adviser can help you decide whether the cost of accidental damage cover is worth it in terms of what the policy actually includes.

It's worth noting that buildings insurance coverage is invalidated if the property is left unattended for more than 30 consecutive days.

What does contents insurance cover?

In a home insurance policy, the contents coverage allows you to select a sum of money (for example £10,000) that you estimate will cover the replacement of contents inside your home if they are damaged, destroyed or stolen.

These items could include electronics and entertainment consoles, kitchenware, furniture, antiques, gym equipment and jewellery. If you have a particularly expensive single item (like a piece of jewellery, a watch or a painting) you may have to declare it separately, depending on your provider's conditions of coverage. This could increase your insurance premium, however. We can help you assess your contents and what your level of coverage should be.

Do you need contents coverage?

Although contents coverage is not compulsory when you own a property, most owners take out some cover (and most providers offer a discounted premium if you have buildings and contents insurance together). Having both means if you need to make a claim for something that affected the building but also some of your contents (for example, flooding damage to your home's foundation and soft furnishings) you would be able to claim for both – using the same policy.

Even if you are renting a property, some contents cover is a good idea to insure your valuable items and provide peace of mind should anything happen.

Home insurance
How we can help you save

Your adviser can search the market and find a home insurance policy that covers your property's structure sufficiently, along with giving you the best advice on how much contents cover you really need. We're here to make sure you're not overpaying for a renewal and will examine your existing plan's small print to check that it properly covers at-risk areas of your home and meets your needs.

Your adviser can help review your home insurance – especially when it's time to renewal – and help ensure you're not overpaying for your policy.
